

UCSC along with every other UC is becoming too much of a budget centered educational program. We dont have enough classes for all, we dont have enough programs. Our school system is a fucking joke. As much as the school tries to push a individualized program where everyone can learn, it just isnt so. I mean the butchering of a small student class program only highlights this. Discussion is the essence of education. You cant expect a society based on repeated facts and discourse to further itself , unless the only thing the society wants is mindless drones to continue working minimum wage jobs and for those workers to consume just to further enrich a few elite. oh wait, this sound familiar.
